Superh, in Madras Road, July 25, 1783. Superh, in Madras Road, July 25, 1783.

MY last andress to year for their Lordhips information, was the rest the right of Murch, of this year, from Bombay. By it I dignified my intention to proceed to its with the dign of his Majesty's squadron under my command, and I falled accordingly on the day folinguined my intention to proceed to fee with the ships of his Majesty's foundron under my companie, and I fallou accordingly on the day following.

On the 8th of April, officine Bassas, I was joined by Captain Fromy, bridge, in his Majesty's ship Active, who had been cruising tody month off the Friar's flood by my orders, and had seen nothing of the month off the Friar's flood by my orders, and had seen nothing of the enemy's foundron during that time.

In the night of the 1cth, a grap hip of the enemy's, that had been taken from the English, fell into the squatton and was captured. By the officess, prisoners, taken in this hip, I letrated the whole of the enemy's foundron, under the command of Monf. Suffrein, was in Trincamale harbobre, except two of their best stiling line of battle ships and two frigates, which were cruzing off Madras to block up that ports; and intercept all supplies bound to it: I therefore impusiastely stoured, with the squadron for that place, and anchored in the road on the 13th of April, but say nothing of the French cruziers, however, as they, had been in sight of the page only the day before, I directed the ships in the margin " under the orders of Captain Mitchell, of the Sultan, on the day following, Captain Graves, of his Majesty's ship Sceptre, whole signal had been made to these a strange sail on the 18th, joined me with the Nadde, a French frigate of 30 gmis, and 140 men, which he had come up with in the night and captured.

On the 16th of April, Captain Burney, of his Majesty's ship Bristol, with his convoy from England, strived in this road, efforted by the ships under the orders of Captain Mitchell, of the Sultan, who had feen nothing of the enemy's cruisers, but sell in with the Britol and her convoy at sea.

On the 16th of April, the Company's ship Duke of Athol-made the

with his convoy from England, arrived in this road, effected by the flujus under the orders of Captain Mitchell, of the Sultain, who had feen nothing of the enemy's ensizers, but fell in with the Briffol and her convoy at fez.

On the 19th of April, the Company's fluip Duke of Athol-made the fignal of diffrefs, and the boars of the figuadron being ordered by fignal to her affoliance, the unfortenately blew up, by whitel unhappy, accident the figuadron lost † fix commissioned officers and four warrant officers, and 127 of our best feamous.

From the day of the figuadron's atrival in this road, all possible difference have been used to complete the ships water, in doing which great delays and frequent disappointments arose from the wart of a sifficient number of shore boars, and the high furf on the beach. However I put to fea on the 2d of May with his Majesty's ships to fight the number of shore boars, and the high furf on the beach. However I put to fea on the 2d of May with his Majesty's ships to fight the enemy's foundrom, and, if possible, intercept their expected reinforcements, although the water of many of the ships was by no means complete, having left in the road his Majesty's three shortships was by no means complete, having left in the road his Majesty's three shortships was by no means for the service of the army then about to march for the streak at Cut-dalote, where the Marquis de Bushy, with the greater part of the French land forces, was posted; and to cover and proceet their store ships, as well as some other ships and welleds employed for the same then about to march for the streak at Cut-dalote, where the Marquis de Bushy, with the greater part of the French land sorces, was posted; and to cover and proceet their store ships, as well as some other ships and veileds employed for the fame purpose, from the enemy's equadron for ships and streak at the request of the Sel-At Committee of this Prefidency, his Majesty's ship stir.

On the 15th of May, when off Cudalore, I spoke two Portugues to windw night, and fall down on the covering thips, and storeships of Cuddalore.

On the 1st of June, two English framen in a beat escaped from the French squadton, and brought certain intelligence that the Fendant, of 74 gans, with two frigates and two storeships, had slipped out of Trincamale Bay; the storeships, I conduded, carried theres for the French garrison of Cuddalore, and the friendant and two frigates delit, ned to cover and protect them; and being apprehensive they might are tack our covering ships and sloveships off Cuddalore. I book away on the 2d of June for the coast, and on the 3d stad light of the Fendant and two frigates, whom I chared fill night, ween I lost sight of their I continued crassing with the squadron, we she is lost sight of Cuddalore till the 3th of June, when I anchored in Porto Novo road, about seven leagues to the southward of that place, partly to cover our own ships in Cuddalore road, and engage the enemy's squadron before they could anchor there, and partly to endeavour to get a supply of water, of which many ships began to be in want; but, after exerting ourselves to the tumost, no water could be obtained either at Porto Novo on Tranquebar; at the first place, the enemy's squadron, under the command of Mont Shiffein, came in sight to the fouthward, consisting of sitteen ships of the line, three frigates and a fireship; and the same day I weighed with his Majesty's squadron, and dropped down to about five miles diffance off Cuddalore, and there anchored? The French squadron anchored off the Cohroon river, about seven or eight leagues to the southward of our's.

On the 17th, 'the French squadron being under sail, and bearing dron anchored off the Colcroon river, about feven or eight leagues to the foothward of our's.

On the 17th, the French Iquidron being under fail, and bearing down, I made the fignal and weighted with his Majesty's figuadron, and formed the line of battle a-head to receive the enemy: In the evening, they hauled the wind, and stood to the foothward, and I followed them with his Majesty's squadron. From this time to the 20th, I was continually employed in endcavouring to get the wind of the enemy, which, however, I was never able to effect, from the extraordinary variableness of the winds, that often brought past of the' two squadrons within a random shot of each other. On the 20th, the enemy fill having the wind, shewed a disposition to engage, when I immediately formed the line of battle a-head, and brought to, to receive them: At four minutes past four, P. M. the van ship of the enemy, having first tried her distance by a single shot, when scarce within point-blank shot distance, the enemy's squadron began their fire on his Majesty's, which, at twenty minutes after was returned, and a heavy Majefty's, which, at twenty minutes after was returned, and a heavy cannonade enfued on both fides, the enemy fill keeping up their first distance; the cannonade continued till seven, P. M. when the enemy hauled off: At day-light, I made the fignal and wore with the squares dron, and brought to, to repair the damages, with the thips heads towards the land; feveral of the thips much disabled in their hulls, math and rigging, the Gibraltar and this in particular; the enemy's squadron nor

We hear from Falkirk, that two men were apprehended in public house there, on Saturday night, and taken before a Jusce of Peace yesterday morning. There is great suspicion a these two men are the persons who robbed the gentleman's rank betwixt the 17th and 18th mile stone, west from Lindgow, as mentioned in our paper of Wednesslay Last.

On Wednesslay the 7th current, between eight and nine clock, at night, a farmer, who lives about three miles north of liftgow, on his way home, was attacked near Springvale by tree fellows, who, after knocking him down, and using him ry bartarously, rubbert him of what money he had about him. The poor man is still confined by the bruises he then received. On Thursday evening, a boat belonging to the Shark sloop. Dn of the robbers, from his diefs, appeared to be a failor.

On Thursday erening, a boat belonging to the Shark sloop of war, lying in Inverkeithing bay, with fficen people on board, it soing from St David's to that place, unfortuately overfet, by which accident, it is said, nine or ten persons perished.

"A few days ago, an acquaintance carried nic to fee a corrious machines, intended for the discovery of the longitude at fea, invented by James M. Walter, a watch maker of this place. He very readily faitsfield our curiofing and indeed the machine exceeded all the delectation is had beard of it, and is entirely upon a new contruction. I was cally furnified to fee with that regularity and existings is performed its various operations; the manner in the length of day and night in all latitudes; and allois the declination of the fun through the whole year. The machine in which it pointed out the longitude feemed to me very clear, and beyond dispute. Mr M. Walter showed me also how this machine finds out the true diffuse of any place lying call or welf, the one from the pither exactly, not by computation, but it ime. He showed me also the way that this machine can find out the number of miles a ship will fail east or well in one day, if the sun can be seen rife and sor the same day. Upon the whole, It think it a complete machine, and one of the greatest curiossies I ever saw; and I believe every person that hath sean, or may hereafter see it, will say the same."
